I am starting from project_name/urls.py which looks like this: urlpatterns = patterns('', url('^$', view1, name='view1'), url('^user/', view2, name='view2'),) The project is located in ~user/. So, I was trying to "go one directory up" by writing project_name/ which corresponds to ~user/project_name. But from inside project_name/ I cannot import anything (e.g. from math import * returns ModuleNotFoundError: No module named'math'). So, what is the proper way to go one directory up, e.g. ~/user/project_name/ is equivalent to? A: From the docs Note that unlike regular Python import syntax, when using relative imports, you'll need to use the. as an explicit separator. That is, if you're trying to import a name prefixed with a dot, such as.p2p, it should be imported by writing from.p2p import p2p instead. A: try this: from. import * to make the right relative import. Viburnum tinus Viburnum tinus is a species of flowering plant in the family Adoxaceae known by the common name rocky shooting star. It is native to the coastal plain and mountain slopes of the southwestern United States, from California to Texas and northern Mexico, where it grows in rocky habitat. It is an erect shrub growing tall. Its branches are spiny and hairy. The thick, cylindrical leaves are long and have hairy leaves and twigs. The flowers, which occur at all seasons, are typically 1.5 to 3.5 centimeters long, bright red, and produced in rac
